> A CORRESPONDENT writer to the Daily Telegraph that a proposal has been made, and is likely to take practical shape, for providing a 'Campo Santo' close to Westminster Abbey, for the sepulchres and memorials of our great dead; in which case no further interments would be permitted in the Abbéy itself. The reason for this step being con-sidered advisable is that not more than fifteen to twenty burials can possibly take place there for mere want of space. As regards statues, there is room for at most three more-one in the northern transept, another near the west door as a pendant to Lord Shaftesbury's, and the third elsewhere. Two busts only can now be added. At the same time it is left that the associations of the Abbey, as a national mausoleum, should be retained as far as possible. Westminster Abbey, as a place of memorial and of burial of distinguished Englishmen, has exerted a powerful stimulus upon the

the Companies Act of 1>82 continue to be understood and appreciated, though perhaps in a more sober and restrained fashion than in previous years. At the beginning of the year there were 888 companies with a nominal capital of 2,913 lakhs. Of these 103 collapsed, but 125 new ones were registered, so that there was a net gain in the year of 22 companies. The great majority of the concerns are formed to work mills or presses for cotton, juto, wool and silk; and it is significant of the commercial energy and activity of the Western Presidency, that of the 960 lakbs invested in this way it has subscribed 663 lakhs, or about twothirds. Another noticeable feature is the increase in the number of companies formed on the limited liability principle to prowhich is probably to be accounted for by the large profits resped in recent years by one or two firms engaged in the import of miscellaneous stores and general bric-a-brac, but which at the same time may be expected to give to that trade an additional stimulus. There can be little doubt that the operation of the joint-stock-principle in India will thus assist the diffusion of European goods for general consumption at cheaper rates than would otherwise have Several of the colleges for ladics now possess private fire brigades, composed of organisations of this kind, and the Royal Holloway College for Ladies is now added to the list. Last week Mr. J. Compton Merryweather, the head of the firm of Merryweather and Sons, and author of the 'Fire Protection of Mansions,' attended at college and made the necessary arrangements with Miss Bishop, the principal, for the formation of the brigade. Subsequently put the lady students through a preliminary fire drill and was very much impressed by the alacrity with which they performed their duties, the majority being remarkably quick and agile in running out the hose, working the fire pumps and corridor engines, and various other manœuvres. The students drill in sections, the respective floors being allotted to different attachments in order to secure their familiarity with the requirements of each part of the building. Separate drills will also be organised for the indoor servants and for the outdoor men, thus securing adequate and officient assistance should a fire unfortunately occur. These arrangements are especially important in view of the very valuable paintings

The accounts given of what occurred are of the most cor flicting nature. An eye-witness, writing in the Temps, describes the attempt o get up a manifestation in the General's favour as having proved completely abortive, the eries of 'Vive Bordinger!' raised by his partisans, being drowned in counter shouts of 'A bas l'assassin! Dear Fellow Citizens .- You have undertaken a campaign in favour of a Republican Revision of the Constitution to which I have of resistance. In my quality of soldier I sought to restore to the Army and to the nation, which are now so closely united that no misunderstanding can for the future separate them, that confidence in themselves which alone can render them invincible. In my quality of citizen I have sought to awaken expectations of reform as I had aroused patriotic hopes (appla se). That reawakening is achieved. Not only does the country need Radical and various reforms, but it is conscious of that need, and is determined to have it satisfied. That determination has manifested itself clearlyis clearly as the prevailing discontent with the present impotent, ruinous, and corrupt regime-at three recent elections, with an energy which shows how great is the common sense and honesty of the masses. The Floquet Ministry- (the mention of the name of the Prime Minister was the signal for an outburst of ironical applause, and cries of 'A bas Floquet,' which for several minutes prevented the General from proceeding) -the Floq of Ministry, to get rid of that Revision which it had undertaken to accomplish, has presented the scheme you all know, and which not only cannot satisfy the country, but cannot even satisfy any of the Parties composing the Chamber. The men in power imagined it was an easy thing to dupe the people, and that to silence the demands of the nation it sufficed to offer it, under the label of "Ravision." a derisive project, which is an insult to the common sense of the public. But they were mistaken. Besides the great reforms, which have become a necessity, what the country

M. Ferry's Revision (cries of 'A bas Ferry!') was a mystification ; that of M. Floquet will be stillborn. Trubmer's Oriental Record contains the following notice of the China Review:-The present publication, judging by the number now before us, is intended to occupy a position, as regards China and the neighbouring countries, some what similar to that which has been filled in India by the Culcutta Review. The great degree of attention that has been bestowed of late years upon the investigation of Chinese literature, antiquities, and social developments, to say nothing of linguistic studies, has led to the accumulation of important stores of inform ation, rendering some such channel of publicity as is now provided extremely desirable; and contributions of much interest may fairly be looked or from the members of the foreign consular services, the Chinese Customs' corps, and the missionary body among whom a high degree of Chinese scholarship is now assiduously cultivated and who are severally represented in the first number of the Review by papers highl creditable to their respective authors . . Some translations from Chinese novels and plays are marked by both accuracy and fresh ness of style; and an account of the career of the Chinese post-statesman of the elevently century, Su Tung-p'o, by Mr. E. C. Bowra, is not only historically valuable, but is also distinguished by its literary grace.
